

Blair and Sutherlands, Gun Makers, Brook Street and Harper's Hill, Birmingham

A military monument describes the firm as “Manufacturers of Arms to his Majesty’s Ordnance; and all kinds of proved guns and pistols for the European, Asian, African and American markets”. Images of war and hunting dominate the engraving. Warships lie at anchor and a column of troops aim their rifles. On the right two men with their dogs are shooting birds. Flags, guns, swords, a bayonet and canon surround the monument which also contains a picture of a soldier firing at a tiger through a thicket of trees.
